KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

THE EAST.

General Grant's Improvement Continues Unchecked.

HE WRITES ANOTHER CHAPTER

The Mexican Editors in Texas—Bloodshed Threatened Over the Cattle Question—A Naval Officer's Opinion of the Navy.

MT. McGREGOR, June 21.—General Grant has slept [illegible] hours since he retired last night. "He is now being dressed and will be out soon," said Dr. Douglas, [illegible] with a caller at the [illegible] cottage between 12 and 1 o'clock to-day. The doctor further explained that the general went to bed a little after [illegible] o'clock last night [illegible] o'clock. From that [illegible] through the night the general [illegible] wakefulness and the doctor had not been called until 7 o'clock this morning, when he cleared the general's throat and applied cocaine to it. At that time the general's voice had been clearer than at any time since his arrival here. When the doctor called at [illegible] o'clock the patient's pulse was [illegible] but after he had become thoroughly aroused by the doctor working over him his pulse increased four beats per minute.

The general remained in his bedroom chair all through the forenoon. It was after midday when he got up and it was about [illegible] o'clock when he made his appearance on the piazza. He wore [illegible] which he donned yesterday and sank himself into a willow armchair on the north veranda of the cottage. When a caller at this time asked the physician how his patient found himself when he arose, [illegible] told him that the general was decidedly better, that all symptoms were decidedly improved over yesterday. The general's voice was [illegible] when he awoke in the morning, but it was [illegible] audible.

THE GENERAL WRITES.

After listening ten minutes to conversation between members of his family, the general [illegible] took up a [illegible] paper [illegible] to his chair, put on his spectacles and began writing. While so engaged the family was called in to lunch, and the doctor having first wrapped a blanket around the patient's legs went up to the hotel for his lunch. General Grant was thus left alone on the piazza and he wrote steadily for three quarters of an hour until 2 o'clock, [illegible] he handed his pad and manuscript to Harrison, who took them inside. Another block of war history had been prepared for insertion at the proper place in the general's memoirs.

ARRIVAL OF VISITORS.

When the little mountain engine [illegible] two little cars [illegible] Saratoga at [illegible] P. M. and it landed 100 people upon the platform of the little rustic depot on top of the mountain, the general was sitting upon the cottage steps. The visitors came up the slope past the cottage in a procession of twos and threes. An impulse was [illegible] to salute the general with lifted hats and he was pleased to see visitors who do not talk to him, and removed his silk hat from his head several times and returned the greeting. The old guard of [illegible] in Grand Army uniform stood at the foot of the steps to prevent curious individuals from crowding forward and speaking to the general.

Black clouds had drifted over the mountains in the morning and rain fell briskly for ten minutes, but in the afternoon the sky was mottled with spaces of sunshine and a pleasant breeze was blowing, made fragrant by odors from pine trees and hemlocks. The general, though coughing a trifle more than yesterday, was having a [illegible] Sunday quite different from what he [illegible] the superheated city a week ago.

NATIONAL BUNDESFEST AT NEWARK.

NEWARK, N. J., June 20.—The twenty-fourth national bundesfest of the North American turners opened in this city to-night. Hundreds of visiting turners arrived during the afternoon and evening. At [illegible] o'clock there was a torchlight procession through the principal streets to Union park, where the formal opening exercises took place. The parade was participated in by 4,000 turners from New York, Brooklyn, Chicago and nearly every prominent city of the west. All the streets along the line of march were densely crowded. It is estimated that at least [illegible],000 persons viewed the parade. The illuminations were very elaborate. On arriving at the park the Aurora singing society of Newark sang a song of welcome. Then Carl Kreig, speaker of the Newark Turnverein, delivered an address of welcome. Gottfried Kruger, chairman of the citizens' committee, also made an address, and Mayor Haynes welcomed the visitors to Newark on behalf of the city. Max Sachs, chairman of the Turners' committee of arrangements, made a brief speech formally opening the festival and turned over the affair to the [illegible] vorort governing body. Hugo Munch of St. Louis, the acting speaker of the bund vorort, replied. After this the visitors were given a [illegible].

THE INDIAN WAR.

FORT PITT, N. W. T., June 20, via [illegible], June 21, 8 A. M.—A courier just in from Otter's camp [illegible] reports Big Bear making for [illegible] lake. All his braves have rejoined him. Otter will pursue him to Birch lake. Otter has captured Yellow Sky and band, who say they were not with Big Bear. They had forty of Robert Wilde's cattle in their possession and admitted taking them from a ranch near Battleford. Strange's force is still at Beaver river. Captain Bedson left with vehicles this morning to meet McLeans and other escaped prisoners expected here to-night.

ACCIDENT TO AN EXCURSION STEAMER.

PEEKSKILL, June 21.—The excursion steamer Long Branch, while returning from Newburg to-day with 1,000 excursionists on board broke one of her paddle wheels in splinters when opposite this village and was immediately stopped. A high wind prevailed and she began drifting. Numerous small boats put out from this village and Jones Point and took off a number of timid passengers. The steamer came near running ashore after drifting a half mile, but with the help of two small tugs a disaster was averted.

SERIOUS TROUBLE THREATENED.

Bloodshed Feared as a Result of the Driving of Texas Cattle through Kansas.

ST. LOUIS, June 21.—Advices from northern Texas are to the effect that serious trouble is looked for in the panhandle over the driving of southern Texas cattle through Kansas. Thousands of cattle are going up the Fort Worth and Denver railroad, to be unloaded at Harrold and then driven through. It is claimed these cattle are diseased and if allowed to go on will spread Texas fever along the line of travel. Kansas men are determined to resist with all means in their power any effort to drive southern Texas cattle through the neutral strip or "no man's land" as it is called. It is said that the promise of Secretary Lamar has been obtained to interpose the strong arm of the government to prevent it and that the United States marshal with a strong posse armed with government authority will by Monday meet the first herd bound for Kansas and they will turn the cattle back or prevent their entrance into the neutral strip. Southern Texas men are very angry over the matter and pronounce it a scare without reason, as their cattle are healthy and they will fight before their rights shall be subverted. They [illegible] to drive into Kansas, and claim that Secretary Lamar has guaranteed them protection [illegible] through, and has notified Kansas men accordingly. Cool headed cattle men say there will be trouble and think the government should call a halt on the trail until the question can be investigated and the true facts ascertained.

ADVICE WANTED.

In connection with the same matter advices come from Topeka, Kansas, which say Governor Martin has received dispatches from the sheriff of Finney county, in the extreme western part of the state, informing him that 600 head of Texas cattle are now gathered south of the state line, [illegible] of [illegible]00 armed men and that an effort will be made to drive through. The sheriff asks for instructions. Governor Martin has telegraphed him that the state line stock sanitary commissioner has been ordered to Garden City, and instructing him to [illegible] with them. If the cattle men persist in attempting to drive their herds into and through Kansas, as it is asserted, resistance will be made and trouble and perhaps bloodshed ensue.

THE MEXICAN EDITORS.

They are Given a Royal Reception at El Paso and are All Pleased.

SAN MARCIAL, New Mex., June 21.—The Mexican editorial excursionists reached El Paso, Texas, this morning, having been met by Mr. [illegible] and the El Paso committee on arrangements fifteen miles [illegible] on the Mexican Central. [illegible] El Paso entertained the excursionists royally with drives, lunches, a banquet and social intercourse of the most cordial description. The speeches by both Americans and Mexicans were full of good feeling, and promises of greatly improved commercial relations between the two countries, and were marked by unusual oratorical merit. Especially eloquent and instructive were the speeches of Mr. Hart of the El Paso Daily Times, and H. M. Munday of El Paso, and Messrs. Arroyo de Anda and [illegible] Mendizabal of the Mexican party. The mayor of El Paso and President Paz of the Mexican press association occupied opposite sides of the table and military commanders of the opposite sides of the Rio Grande sat at opposite ends of the tables. Some sixty prominent people sat down to a sumptuous repast. The general fraternal feeling which prevailed was particularly noticeable in the short welcome to the United States, which was all that could have been desired. That the results of this international visit will be most profitable to both countries no one can doubt who mingles with these editors and notes their expressions of pleasure and surprise at what they are experiencing.

THE PROGRAMME.

The party spend Monday at the Las Vegas Hot Springs as guests of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, and proceed Tuesday to Topeka and Kansas City. They are delighted with the atten[illegible] [illegible] and to make the most [illegible] two daughters of [illegible] wife and daughter of [illegible] of Orizaba. The party [illegible] representative Mexicans [illegible]. The members [illegible] both ladies and gentlemen [illegible] of the United States [illegible] San Marcial [illegible] of over forty miles [illegible].

BUREAU OF ETHNOLOGY.

The Work for the Coming Fiscal Year Mapped out and Approved.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The coming fiscal year's work for the bureau of ethnology has been mapped out by Mr. Powell and the plans have received the formal approval of Prof. Baird. Dr. [illegible] Thomas, in charge of the division of mound exploration, will take the field with two or three assistants soon after the beginning of the fiscal year, going first to Wisconsin to [illegible] and study the effigy mounds of that locality and later [illegible] to Mississippi and Tennessee. The division has been in operation during three years under charge of Dr. Thomas, and he has secured about fifteen thousand specimens of the handiwork of mound builders, the study of which has solved many archæologic puzzles. The famous elephant mound, which has long been a bone of contention among ethnologists, and which in the opinion of some, proved that the mound builders were coexistent with the elephant upon this continent, appears by the latest survey to have no trunk at all. Earlier surveys, compared with each other, show a trunk in widely different positions, which leads to the inference that if the appendage was not entirely imaginary it was nothing more than sand piled up and shifted about by the winds. Without a trunk the mound bore as much resemblance to a fox as to an elephant.

Mr. [illegible], the artist, has already started out to revisit New Mexico, Utah and Arizona. Last season he went into Colorado canyon, New Mexico, and surveyed several remarkable ruined pueblos of great antiquity, but being under order to return in time to complete his models for exhibition at New Orleans, he did not make the exhaustive survey of the ruins which their extent and character warranted.

Mr. W. H. Holmes, an artist and geologist of the geological survey, has during the last three years made an exhaustive study of decorative art of the native Americans, contributing the results to publications of the bureau of ethnology. He will during the present season make a short visit to Arizona to pursue the study further.

All scientists of the bureau are inspired to activity at this time by knowledge of the fact that this country affords the best opportunity the world has yet known to study the beginnings of the things which constitute human progress, an opportunity which by the encroachments of civilization is rapidly passing away.

THE AMERICAN NAVY.

What a Prominent Naval Officer has to Say Regarding It.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The duties of the naval advisory board will cease when the new cruisers Boston, Atlanta and Chicago are completed. The secretary of the navy has power to change members of the board at any time, and it is believed he will make changes if he should be once convinced that the board is responsible for the failure of the Dolphin. A prominent naval officer, when asked to-day if he thought it possible to build naval vessels in this country equal to those of foreign countries, said:

"No, I do not, simply because we have not experience, but we could soon learn. It would not be good policy to have our vessels built in England. We could get no money for such a project, but I think nothing prevents us from obtaining plans from English shipbuilders. We could buy their plans and profit by their experience and then we could build ships that would be ships in every sense of the word."

"Are the vessels which compose our navy now considered good of their kind?"

"Yes, some of them, but they are obsolete and amount to nothing as men-of-war. The same thing will [illegible] upon us some day that happened to the Chinese at Foo Chow, when their whole fleet was destroyed in just seven minutes. Their vessels were just as good as ours and their guns were better, for they were modern. There is not a nation on the face of the earth that has any navy at all that could not whip us at sea without half trying. Of course we are the laughing stock of foreign countries when we visit their ports in our antediluvian ships. It is a mortification to a commander of one of our vessels every time he takes his ship into port, because it looks as if he thought his vessel was formidable when he knows it amounts to nothing as a war vessel. One day I hope to see a complete reorganization of our navy, both in personnel and material."

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

A RIVAL LOVER MURDERED.

LYNCHBURG, Va., June 21.—At [illegible] o'clock this morning, at Thomas's store, Campbell county, near this city, while leaving a church fair which had been in progress all night, William Atkinson and Peter Gilliam quarrelled as to which should accompany home a girl to whom both were paying attention. Finally Gilliam called his rival a dog and Atkinson, without reply, pulled a large butcher knife from his coat and killed Gilliam by cutting his throat until his head was nearly severed from his body. The murderer was arrested and put in jail. All the parties are colored.

FIVE NEGROES LYNCHED.

[illegible], Ky., June 21.—About 2 o'clock this morning a mob of several hundred persons, on learning the verdict of the coroner's jury investigating the death of Mrs. Randolph Hazell, proceeded to the stone court where the negroes charged with the murder were imprisoned and took Andrew Jackson and wife, Lizzie, Frank Hayes, Joe Norman and Wm. Rodgers and hanged them all to a tree near the scene of the previous night's murder.

SIX INDIANS KILLED BY WHITES.

FORT LEWIS, Colo., June 21.—It is rumored this evening that six Ute Indians were killed by whites in the [illegible] valley. The chief of the tribe to which they belonged is very much enraged [illegible]. If the rumor proves true there is every probability there will be trouble in [illegible] settlement [illegible] Utes.

The Iowa Storm.

Special dispatches to St. Paul papers give the following account of the losses in Iowa by the tornado Sunday night of last week:

The damage in Cherokee county will amount to $[illegible],000; in Woodbury county, $100,000; Plymouth county, $[illegible],000; Monona county, $[illegible],000 and [illegible] county $30,000. At this time there are reports of [illegible] in Buena Vista, Sac, [illegible], Calhoun and Webster counties, but not enough to form an estimate of the loss. [illegible] Fort Dodge it was the [illegible] of wind and rain [illegible]. The [illegible] killed seven, fatally and fifty severely wounded. The following damages are in addition to this: [illegible] At Sioux City [illegible] packing house is damaged $[illegible]. [illegible] Plymouth [illegible] at Le Mars is damaged $10,000 and the gas works $8,000. Four freight cars are on their sides. The St. Joseph Catholic church is damaged $10,000, the ice house $2,000, Adams' skating rink $1,500. The Richards house roof is gone and the rooms flooded. The opera house is unroofed and nearly every house is more or less damaged. The main loss of life and destruction seems to have been in Cherokee county, and the news is slow in coming in on account of the wires being down.

An Englishman would rather drink untaxed beer than to stand on the pavement and watch the queen go by.—Atlanta Constitution.

FOREIGN DISPATCHES

Waddington, French Ambassador to London, Speaks.

THE ATTITUDE OF THE CZAR.

The Spanish Ministry Reinstated After a Riot—Emperor William Receives Minister Pendleton—Affairs in South America.

NEW YORK, June [illegible].—The Times' London special says: The radicals are circulating stories to the effect that Russia has taken umbrage at the [illegible] of Salisbury's assumption of the secretaryship of state for the foreign department and his selection of Lord Randolph Churchill as secretary of state for India, and that she would interpret [illegible] to Russia. The more moderate liberals deplore this course, and say that Russian interference of any sort would be the surest way to strengthen the tories as a national party and revive the war fever. News from India reports general delight among the natives at Churchill's assumption of the Indian office. He made a fine impression upon [illegible] during his visit, and is regarded as their champion against the official English class. The new ministry will be very careful to give Russia no actual grounds of offense, but Sir Peter Lumsden will be presented with a sword and otherwise honored, perhaps by being made a peer, and England's attitude in alluding to the [illegible] negotiations will be politely firm in refusing further concessions. If Russia [illegible] out of her way to quarrel over [illegible] negotiations, as [illegible] now goes out of his way to say disagreeable things [illegible] Salisbury and Churchill, it will be an easy matter to rally England to the defense of her flag.

AN INTERVIEW WITH WADDINGTON.

Comments of the continental press leave no room for doubt that a majority of the statesmen of Europe yearn for the accession to power of Lord Salisbury and a conservative cabinet. Politicians of France may possibly not share this feeling. If so they are alone in their opposition and it is by no means certain that they do not desire a change. This view is strongly supported to-day by an interview with Henry Waddington, French ambassador to England. M. Waddington said:

"I regard it as certain that a change from liberal to conservative rule will not affect the relations between France and England and indeed it is not easy to see how it could."

"Are not complications likely to arise regarding Egypt?"

"Not more likely than at present and indeed even less likely. The conservatives are not pledged to any anti-French policy. Lord Salisbury's record in fact shows him to be at least as favorably disposed toward France as the outgoing government. It was he who, as Beaconsfield's foreign secretary, was author of dual control in Egypt, which for the first time gave France co-equal dominion with England in Egyptian affairs, to which she is clearly entitled by her vast interests in that country."

"But since Arabi's rebellion the conservatives have opposed dual control as vigorously as the liberals."

"Yes, it is true they have diverged from their former policy, but they have not been in control and the responsible acts of a government are often very different from the utterances of the same party when in opposition. There are also some indications of a return of conservatives to their former views regarding Egypt."

WITH OTHER COUNTRIES.

"How is the change likely to affect British relations with the continental countries?"

"Very little, for the reason that the conservatives lack stability and promise of permanence necessary to reverse the existing foreign policy even if they desired. Nobody in Europe will [illegible] himself with a government that will probably not last six months."

"Will it not change some of Bismarck's projects?"

"Bismarck may rejoice at it, as his policy always has been to sow discord between France and England with the view, desiring to see them actually embroiled in war. But it must be remembered that Bismarck and the old chiefs are vanishing from the stage, and Germany's malign influence will cease to make itself felt. Another disturbing cause which has often imperilled the harmony of France and England is the unnecessary bitterness of newspaper utterances on both sides of the channel. This has been especially true regarding Egyptian affairs, although these editorial stirrers and jingoes would be compelled to admit, if they could reason calmly on the subject, that the best solution of the Egyptian problem would be to furnish a well defined understanding between France, England and Italy."

"How do diplomatists generally regard the prospect of a change in the government?"

"All of the diplomats would be glad to see Gladstone's hesitation replaced by a policy of men who would at least know what they wanted to say and would say it frankly and plainly. The delays and hesitation of Granville as foreign secretary have at times been stumbling blocks in the progress of diplomatic negotiations and have more than once menaced the peace of Europe without the slightest intention of doing so on Lord Granville's part."

"What do you think of the composition of the projected cabinet as far as announced?"

"The new men are satisfactory enough with the exception perhaps of Churchill. He's too impetuous. He will probably be a thorn in the side of the cabinet and will cause wounds which will require careful stanching."

HOW RUSSIA STANDS.

The inspired Russian organ Le Nord of Brussels, in an editorial, says: "Russia is ready to conclude the parleyings on the Russo-Afghan frontier question with the tories on the basis agreed by the Gladstone cabinet. She is even anxious for the tories to act promptly in the matter so she can know quickly whether it is to be peace or war." The article concludes as follows: "Russia has no desire that Salisbury's anti-Russian language [illegible] during recent debates will endanger the [illegible] situation as a Russophobe; an opposition bench in parliament is not necessarily a Russophobe when he becomes a minister." On the other hand the St. Petersburg Novosti urges that the Russian government take decisive measures to check the insolence of the Afghans and it is believed that this utterance reflects the views of the war party.

Disorder continued throughout the night with slight abatement, but the crowd was finally dispersed. To-day it is reported that two workmen were shot dead and several were wounded. Mr. C. H. Cox, keeper of a [illegible] restaurant on I street between Fourth and Fifth, for a few days past has been suffering from a slight aberration of mind, caused, it is said, by financial troubles. Thursday night he disappeared and his wife instituted a search, which resulted in his being found on a straw pile near the [illegible] cannery yesterday morning, where he had camped to the annoyance of the occupants. Being a member of the Foresters lodge here, Dr. Wigg, a fellow member, was notified and interested himself on his behalf. Under his advice he was taken to St. Vincent's hospital, where he will be secure while receiving proper treatment.

HELD UP.

Sunday afternoon about 3 o'clock a man while walking from the O. & C. railroad depot on the [illegible] to Holladay avenue, was waylaid by a small gang of tramps. The assaulted party showed fight, and after a hard struggle escaped without any loss except one sleeve of his coat. He returned to the depot where he related his adventure in writing, being deficient in the power of speech. A man of this description was begging relief in the city yesterday for the wounded, [illegible] his expenses to Albany, exhibiting a letter purporting to come from Chaplain Stubbs, stating that he had recently been discharged from the hospital and was worthy of assistance. The city is again infested with tramps [illegible] make the railroad depot their rendezvous and the sooner they are routed the better.

NOTES.

Dick Bunce, who broke his arm recently, is able to resume business.

John W. Sullivan, whose foot was fractured at a recent fire drill, is convalescent.

Al. Pocock, who broke his [illegible] the other day by falling from a staging, is doing well and is able to go out on crutches.

The deep sea fishing scheme is not dead, but only sleeping for want of pecuniary assistance. The projectors are confident of large returns.

The Free Methodists, who are holding a camp meeting on the Hawthorne property adjacent to Sixth street, had a large attendance last evening.

Among the crowd eager to witness the high school commencement exercises at Nippach's hall recently were a number of boys who, unable to gain admittance at the door, secured ladders, climbed on to the awning and witnessed the proceedings from the window. The ladders were left where used and taken charge of by John Nep[illegible], who still retains them, not knowing their owner.

WHITE SPECKS IN BUTTER.

[illegible], W. T., June [illegible].

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

What is the cause of white spots or white streaks in butter after it is worked? Is there any rule by which one can tell when butter is worked enough and not too much? Will you or some dairyman please answer through THE OREGONIAN.

SUBSCRIBER.

White specks in butter come from several causes. One is that recently skimmed cream is put into old cream just before churning. Cream needs a certain amount of ripening and acidity before churning. The new cream added to the old will not churn to butter as soon as the old and the white specks sometimes come from the unchurned cream.

Again white specks sometimes is the result of not perfectly working the butter after the butter milk is drawn off. The better way is to work the butter but very little. Our rule is to churn until the butter comes in pellets about the size of wheat kernels, then draw off the buttermilk, turn into the churn clear and pure cold water, give the churn a few revolutions and draw off the water. Put in more water and repeat the process until the water runs off from the butter clear. Then take out and salt about one ounce to the pound. Work it only enough to mix the salt well through and set away in a cool place for twelve hours or the next day, then work very slightly and pack. Butter should never be worked to break the grain and show any salvy or putty appearance.

POLITICAL EXPRESSION.

Boston Record: The democratic camp followers [illegible] stop following the army if not allowed to have the spoils. What is an army without its bummers?

Boston Herald (Ind.): Ohio may be carried by the republicans on local issues. Certainly there is nothing in the dominant democracy of that state which should cause the people to wish any more of it.

Cleveland Leader and Herald: The republicans of Ohio have once more taken the position that the liquor traffic must pay a part of the expenses it creates. This is sound doctrine, and the Bourbons are welcome to oppose it if they dare.

New York World: Once more as democrats we must protest against the imperialistic proclivity of the New York Sun, which now says that Mr. Tilden is quite willing to leave to the chosen rulers of the country the duty of attending to their own proper functions.

Knoxville Journal: The Ohio republicans have issued a ringing platform and with a good, strong ticket in the field are ready for the fray. Foraker is a gallant leader, and with the party united and enthusiastic to follow will conduct a campaign which will attract the attention of the whole country.

New York Tribune: Evidences multiply, says the Brooklyn Eagle, that the democratic party is rising to the full stature of its president. This remark is only another evidence of how little the democratic party knows about what it needs. It always had enough stomach and neck. Its conspicuous want is brains.

Pittsburg Dispatch: The necessity for uniform laws and rules for the universal pursuits of mankind throughout the states of the Union nowhere appears more clearly than in the demand for a federal congress to codify and equalize the rules of the great American game. This is one of the necessities arising out of the increased facilities of inter-communication between the various sections.

Bill Nye at a Military Banquet.

Boston Globe.

"I am not much of a military man. I once undertook to hold a claim in the North Park, but a bitterness sprang up between myself and the Indians and I lost my [illegible] from hair. [illegible], chief of the Utes, came to the [illegible] one day and said he would give me two sheep to get away. I didn't want any difficulty with him and I thought it [illegible] was enough, and so I hurried right away. I said to him: 'Noble warrior of the [illegible], take my mine. You can have it; it's already salted. It will keep through the hot weather all right. Help yourself to anything you can find. Take my [illegible]. Take my whisky. Drink yourself into a premature grave [illegible] with my nitroglycerine and drop on yours.' And then I [illegible]."

"Close the door gently
And bridle the breath
I've one of my headaches
I'm sick unto death."

"Take 'Purgative Pellets'
They're pleasant and sure
I've some in my pocket
I'll warrant to cure."

Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" are both preventive and curative.

PACIFIC COAST.

The Policy of the Canadian Pacific Outlined.

JUDGE LAWTON'S APPOINTMENT.

A Peaceable Citizen of Spokane Falls Murdered by a Drunken Indian—Four Indians Killed at an Idaho Agency.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Speaking of the near completion of the Canadian Pacific railroad, the Chronicle says: It proposes to carry emigrants from Halifax on the Atlantic to Port Moody on the Pacific for $15. This is the lowest immigrant transcontinental rate ever offered. Further, it has fixed [illegible] emigrant fare from Liverpool to the Pacific ocean. No other overland route and ocean line ever combined to carry passengers for this sum from Europe across the American continent. Little has been said of the Canadian Pacific in America, but all over Europe its descriptive pamphlets have fallen thick as December snow flakes. It is stated that the line traverses rich agricultural fields for sale at cheap prices. The operation of the Canadian Pacific will exert a powerful influence upon American overland roads. In the first place it will attempt to direct the stream of immigration from the states and territories of this country to the lands of the English provinces. Low rates will undoubtedly be an inducement to poor immigrants. It is one of the chief interests of American overland roads to settle a large population within their territory, and the fact that the Canadian Pacific will carry immigrants from the Atlantic to the Pacific for $15 will certainly compel a modification of third class rates on American roads. The Canadian Pacific will also enter the race for the trade of the Orient. A gentleman connected with the Canadian Pacific said a few days ago that a fast line of steamers would be put on between its western terminus and China and Japan. He said that both the land and the sea route would be shorter than those by the southern lines. For this reason it is expected that the Canadian Pacific will be an active competitor for Pacific coast trade, both east and west bound.

DENIS KEARNEY AGAIN.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Denis Kearney announces to-day his intention to run for governor of the state next year on a workingmen's ticket. The chief plank in his platform will be that municipalities have the right to regulate the workingman's hours of labor. He says he will make a six months campaign and adds: "It will be the most magnificent campaign ever witnessed in California, and I will be elected too."

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—The signal service [illegible] for the next twenty four hours are fair weather on the entire coast. In the middle Pacific northwesterly winds will prevail.

The Garfield monument arrived to-day.

JUDGE LAWTON'S APPOINTMENT.

Vice President Hendricks' Nephew Greatly Surprised by the News.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—[Special.]—Surprises have followed so fast since President Cleveland began to fill federal offices in California that the totally unlooked for appointment of Judge Israel Lawton to the superintendency of the mint was received with apathy. A more unexpected event, however, could hardly have occurred, as Judge Lawton was never heard of here in connection with the mint until news that he was made ruler of it arrived. So certain did Mr. Hendricks' appointment as superintendent of the mint appear that he was besieged by applicants for places. He was even invited by a prominent republican office holder to inspect his future department, and it is said twice made a tour of the mint with a view of obtaining a clearer idea of his prospective duties. Among the applicants that found favor with Mr. Hendricks and were to have been installed under his patronage for the next four years was Joe Van Prague, who is said to have been promised the appointment of custodian of coins in the mint. A resident of Plumas county, and a friend of Senator Kellogg, felt so sure Mr. Hendricks would be the next superintendent and he himself an employe thereof, that he actually settled up his affairs in Plumas county and moved to this city to await the arrival of Mr. Hendricks' commission. When such confidence was reposed in the candidacy of the vice-president's nephew the effect of [illegible] must have been stunning to politicians.

HENDRICKS' INFLUENCE WEAK.

The Washington dispatches stated that the fact of Mr. Hendricks' relationship was disadvantageous to him, the vice president being averse to pressing claims of kinsmen. Private advices received here, however, ascribe the vice-president's abstention from place-hunting to the marked coolness with which all his suggestions have been received. The vice president is a "copperhead" democrat of the most pronounced type, and the president believes that he owes a debt of gratitude to the mugwumps. As an instance may be cited the appointment of appraiser Dan Yost, who has always been regarded as a pronounced republican.

It is believed here by those who have been lately in Washington and closely observed events that if the vice-president saw his way to advance the claims of his nephew without treading on delicate ground he would have placed the mint beyond reach of Judge Lawton or other compromise candidate. The question of relationship has not prevented the new administration conceding favors to persons strongly recommended. The Lorillards have helped to put several relatives in office, and the president has apparently not stopped to consider whether fitness of candidates should be overbalanced by the fact that they all belonged to the same family. Colonel Stewart M. Taylor was appointed to the naval office here and the Lorillards indorsed him. On the same strong recommendation Kermacher, another relative of the Lorillard family, received a naval office at New Orleans. Samuel H. Brooks, a brother-in-law of Colonel Taylor, is accredited with having won the fight for the sub treasury, so that one family has given the country several public servants, and the president has apparently paused only to consider their fitness and the value of their recommendations. It would be but just, natural and proper it would seem that the vice president should solicit an office for his nephew, as that Pierre Lorillard should help to make two relatives naval officers, and the vice president, it is thought, would perhaps have done so were it not that the influence of Secretary Manning is infinitely more powerful with Cleveland.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

SPOKANE FALLS CITIZEN MURDERED BY A DRUNKEN INDIAN.

SPOKANE FALLS, June 21.—A terrible tragedy and one which has created the most intense feeling in this community occurred about 10 o'clock last night. Charles Geiger, a tinsmith in the employ of Holley & Newport in this city, started for his home about 10 o'clock, and when about half a mile out of town was overtaken by a drunken Indian and shot in the back. The ball passed entirely through the body and Geiger fell from his horse and died in a few minutes. The shooting was heard by some teamsters camped near by, and on going to the spot they found Geiger in the death throes. A messenger was at once dispatched to the city to inform the officers. A picnic of the German Concordia society was being held below the city when the messenger arrived and the announcement of the murder caused the most intense excitement. Every able-bodied man on the grounds immediately started in pursuit of the murderer. Hundreds struck out over the prairies on foot and every available horse in town was brought out and the country scoured for miles around in search of the murderer but without avail.

At [illegible] o'clock this morning the last posse returned from their fruitless search. Two Indians who were in company of the murderer at the time of the shooting were brought in and these, in company with Sheriff Whittier and Constable Hubbard, left this afternoon on another search. The murderer is a Calispel and is known to the Indian police, and there is every hope that they will be successful. If they are the courts will never try the [illegible].

[illegible] was about 22 years of age and unmarried. He was a member of Spokane lodge No. [illegible], I. O. O. F., and was buried this afternoon under the auspices of that order. It is thought by many here that the killing was the result of a grudge.

SUDDEN DEATH.

SPOKANE FALLS, June 21.—[Special.]—J. [illegible] Dew, who for some years past has held the position of grand lecturer of the I. O. G. T. for Oregon and California, was found dead in his chair on his ranch about eighteen miles south of this place. Heart disease is thought to have been the cause. His funeral took place this afternoon under the auspices of the Good Templars of this place.

IDAHO.

FOUR INDIANS KILLED AT AN AGENCY.

SALT LAKE, June 21.—A [illegible] special from [illegible], Idaho, says: Four Indians were killed yesterday at the Ross Fork agency, Idaho. The trouble was occasioned by a couple of Bannocks who had been depredating on agency stock. Learning that they were about to be arrested for their thefts they drew the Indian police from the agency this morning and opening fire upon them killed two and wounded a third, the other escaping. Later in the day about [illegible]00 police surrounded the thieves near the agency and riddled them with bullets. Returning to the agency the police appeared crazed with excitement and for a time a general outbreak seemed imminent, as all the Indians killed had relatives and friends at the agency. The agent finally succeeded in reducing them to quiet.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, MONDAY, JUNE 22, 1885.

WHAT THE IOWANS SEE AND SAY.

Scenery is a fine thing;—majestic mountains, rushing rivers, great cataracts, towering cliffs and mighty forests. And, as old Pindar says, best is clear, sparkling water of all things. But men can't live on grand scenery and fluid streams and transparent air. Our Iowans had taken in the scenery; and then the question was whether there was much of anything in Oregon and Washington suited to the wants of man as a terrestrial animal. This was solved by their trip from Portland to southern Oregon and back, during which they saw the great and famous agricultural and pastoral valleys of western and southern Oregon; and their impressions as to the agricultural resources of the northwest are now to be reinforced by a visit to the great fertile region of the inland empire.

Nothing could exceed the surprise and delight of our visitors upon beholding the beauty, the fertility and the extent of the valleys of western and southern Oregon. Their descriptions indicate almost rapturous impressions. Much as they had read of Oregon, they were not at all prepared for what they saw. Grand sights they had witnessed everywhere; but it was reserved for this trip to give them views of utility and grandeur combined.

Going now into eastern Oregon and eastern Washington, they will see a country differing in many ways from that which they have just visited, but possessing its own kind of beauty; of high fertility, of great extent, inhabited by progressive people, and though newer than western Oregon, yet in advance of it in some of the striking features of modern enterprise. It is no harm to say that in some respects our people west of the Cascade range are a little slower than their brethren east of it. Conservatism is apt to grow to indolence, where the conditions of life are unusually easy.

These views of this region, taken together, will show our visitors an agricultural country in the Pacific northwest of sufficient extent for two great states. Agriculture is the first foundation of communities, and it is most profitable when it is not an exclusive pursuit, but where the conditions are such as to make it the foundation of other industries. Our visitors will now see that Oregon and Washington have agricultural resources which, combined with the vast resources of iron, coal, timber, water-power, and various minerals in which the country abounds give possibilities of a great future. They will see, too, what position Portland has in relation to the business and the development of the northwest, situated as it is at the point where the great natural lines of communication between all the parts of so vast a country converge.

Our visitors go to-day. We have been glad to greet them. May we see them again!

RAILROAD MATTERS.

The president of the Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, Mr. Elijah Smith, did not return to the east with the others who came out to attend the recent meeting of the company, but is spending a few days here and hereabout with a view to gaining particular and personal information of the country. He has visited the lower Columbia and Sound regions and will have a look at the Willamette valley and the Inland Empire before he leaves us. Mr. Smith appears to have come somewhat tardily to an understanding of the fact that railroad management is a business requiring something besides the ability to gauge the New York stock market. It has been the particular vice of railroad management in this country and, so in all the western states more or less, that the seat of actual authority has been far removed from the seat of actual operations and not properly intelligent about the thousand local conditions which enter into it. Our railroads have been managed largely from Wall street and with about the same understanding of the practical situation here, as a man here could have of the stock situation there. Both schemes have been tried and have failed.

Railroad management ought to be independent of the New York stock market, and it ought to be like the management of other kinds of business. It ought most of all to be local. Imagine the management of the First National bank of this city, or the wholesale business of Messrs. Allen & Lewis, being directed day by day by telegraph from New York! No such management could be successful in competition with business closely directed at home. Railroads and the people have both suffered from the "absentee" system, and the time must soon come when it will be a thing of the past, when railroads must be conducted on common business principles.

There is an interesting story in circulation to the effect that Mr. Elijah Smith's re-election to the presidency of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company just saved the lease. It is said that Mr. Brayton Ives, who failed in the contest, was the representative of the Chas. B. Wright interest, and that the thing had been "set up" against the lease and in the interest of Tacoma, which Mr. Wright is anxious to build up. So confident was Mr. Ives of success that he printed in the Philadelphia Record a list of the prospective directory in which only Mr. Endicott of the old board was to have a place. This came under the eye of Mr. Smith who "dropped on the little game" at once and came out by special train on the double-quick, reaching here just in time to defeat Mr. Ives's plans. We give this simply as matter of current gossip which may or may not be wholly true.

SECTIONAL STRIFE.

Speaking of the Ohio republican platform, the New York Herald says: "It is a renewal of sectional agitation;" and again: "It will not do for the republican party to let the country believe that it intends to renew sectional strife." In what is it a renewal of sectional agitation? The only expressions in it that could be tortured by any misconstruction into such a meaning is its assertion that "the right to vote according to the constitution of the United States must be secured at all hazards," followed by the declaration that "the democratic party owes its national victory last fall to willful suppression of the ballot, and therefore cannot be looked to for enforcement of the constitutional guarantees." Is it, then, renewal of sectional agitation to declare that the constitution must be enforced, and to declare the palpable truth that the democratic party is not enforcing it?

Then let the democratic party abandon its hostility to the constitutional enactments that followed the war, and to the rights guaranteed by them. It bitterly opposed these enactments, endeavored to prevent their adoption, and has since succeeded in nullifying at least two of them.

The republican party intends to insist on enforcement of the constitution and protection of the rights guaranteed by it. This is not "renewal of sectional strife;" it is fidelity to the principles that have actuated the republican party through its whole career. Never has sectional strife been promoted by the republican party. That has been the work of the democratic party for more than thirty years, and it is still its work. Of it there have been many fruits, whereof needs here no account. Its present conspicuous fruit is the confederacy of sixteen states, made solid through suppression of rights conferred by the constitution of the United States.

There are many readers of the New York Herald who still recall the time when it denounced the republican party for opposing the extension of slavery, on the allegation that, by so doing, it was "stirring up sectional strife." Not truer is its present assertion that it is "renewing sectional strife" by insisting that the rights guaranteed by the amendments to the constitution shall be respected and enforced.

"Our Political Delusion" is the subject of a valuable and suggestive article in the last Atlantic. The delusion consists in supposing that a change of presidents is a change of policies. The writer asserts that the election of a president determines little more than whether one or the other of the principal candidates shall control the appointments to office. He fixes the responsibility for legislation upon the speaker of congress and the chairmen of committees which he appoints. No other person, he says, can so impress his personal views upon legislation as can he. He can appoint to the committees which have special charge of legislation on important subjects a majority of men who agree with his views, and these committees can practically exercise entire control of the matter. This is also exemplified by the history of the last session. The speaker had appointed to the coinage committee a majority of members hostile to the suspension of silver coinage; and so, in spite of the impending business crisis, nothing affecting the subject was reported. The subject was, indeed, brought up at the close of the session, but only by a parliamentary device founded on the fact that the purchase of silver bullion by the treasury was a question of appropriation, and a provision could therefore be tacked on to the bills of another committee than that of coinage. In fact, the speaker who makes up the committees is the only single person of any real importance in the legislative branch of our government.

THE EXAMPLE OF IOWA.

Many of our Iowa visitors are farmers as well as editors and even those who are not farmers are interested in and intelligent upon agricultural matters. Agriculture is the chief business of Iowa and the questions involved in its operations are naturally much studied by those who write for the press of that state. The impressions of such men respecting our agricultural conditions are highly valuable, much more so, indeed, than their views of strictly commercial matters with which they can have no close and in-bred knowledge. When we are told by Mr. Wallace, who spoke at the banquet Saturday night, and by Mr. Coffin, whose letter we print this morning, that our farming methods are crude and wasteful, that we grow those things whose production makes us poorer and neglect lines of production which would make us rich, and when in this testimony they are joined by others of equal experience and equally capable of judgment, it is worth while that we take the precept to mind.

Mr. Coffin's letter is a practical statement concerning matters that have been discussed from time to time in these columns. What we have argued upon theories, he demonstrates by results. He says that the farmers of Iowa bankrupted themselves raising wheat. Oregon farmers will do the same if they persist in their present policy. He says that the change from wheat growing to dairying lifted Iowa from the mire and has made her rich. Surely we should not wait for general bankruptcy to bring us to a true understanding of conditions which may be learned by easier lessons. If Iowa, two thousand miles nearer market, cannot raise wheat with profit, certainly Oregon cannot. If Iowa, with her severe climate, can grow rich by the dairy and by stock production, Oregon certainly can do the same or better. If we do not profit by the experience of Iowa (and what is true of Iowa is as true of other states), we shall be unworthy of prosperity.

We cannot much longer deceive ourselves with the idea that our soil is inexhaustible. The severe drain upon the lands of Western Oregon by continuous wheat production is evident in the lessened annual products. Fields which once yielded forty bushels to the acre now yield but twenty-five, and where twenty-five was formerly produced there is now a scant eighteen. The land is losing its fertility and if we continue to tax it, it will soon fail to respond with the "sure crop" which is the boast of the state. The advantages of a system which, by the means Mr. Coffin suggests, will add to the native fertility of the soil, are too obvious for discussion. This is a matter worth a good deal of serious thinking.

There has not been enough "theoretical farming" in Oregon. Our people have been too well satisfied with the tolerable prosperity possible under wrong notions of farming, only because of the extraordinary advantages of a rich virgin soil and a fine climate. There has not been a wholesome disposition to study the situation and to seek the better ways. Now, some change is necessary if we are to avoid disaster. The problem is now that of prevention; let us have a care that it does not become one of cure.

The following news item may or may not be based on fact:

President Cleveland refuses to appoint James Ryan postmaster at Appleton, Wisconsin, because he is the publisher of a partisan democratic newspaper. The administration is daily removing republicans because of their connection with partisan republican sheets, and the postmaster general and the president will not knowingly appoint a man to a postoffice who is connected with a partisan newspaper.

We should be sorry to see Brother Noltner, of the Standard, placed under the alternative of quitting newspaper work or doing without an official appointment. By his fidelity to his party during so many years he has richly earned any place in the state which a democratic administration has to bestow. He has carried on a daily paper here for many years, and is the only democrat in the state who could have done it. Is it fair to proscribe him for it?

Division of sentiment on the Morey water proposition appears to be somewhat on the following lines, namely: People who pay water tax but have little or no property tax are largely in favor of it, while people whose property tax is so considerable as to make their water tax appear comparatively light are generally against it. To those who do not pay property tax the $16,000 a year to be paid by the city appears not worth considering, while to many, perhaps most, who do pay property tax, the high rate for water appears a less evil than a high rate of general taxation.

The croakers who have of late been trying to make out that the exports of this country are falling off are not sustained by the official returns. The last reports of the United States bureau of statistics show that the value of the breadstuffs exported from this country in the last eleven months was $1,575,652 in excess of those of the corresponding period last year, and also that our exports of cattle, meats and dairy products are increasing, instead of diminishing in quantity and value.

Even the New York Times, mugwump and renegade republican, in talking about the Ohio republican platform, admits that the right of suffrage has long been violated in the south, but argues that it is useless to protest against or complain about it. Just what all the doughfaces of the country used to say about the high-handed proceedings of the slave oligarchy. But protest wasn't useless, after all.

"The White Mountain Apostle of Cold Water" is the sobriquet applied by some poetic democrat to Senator Blair, just re-elected to the United States senate from New Hampshire. And the poetic democrat, dropping from poetry into fiction, adds that "Senator Blair will not even drink out of a spring fringed with mint."

The most eminent of living democrats, Jefferson Davis, is 77 years old, grown feeble, and can't survive long. Government flags will soon be put at half mast as an expression of sorrow for his departure, and perhaps other methods of testifying the national loss will be adopted.

A clergyman in central Illinois startled his congregation a few Sundays ago by making the following announcement: "Remember our communion service next Sunday forenoon. The Lord will be with us during the morning service, and the bishop in the evening."

Mr. Cleveland is politely informed by the Macon Telegraph that an attempt to build up a mugwump contingent in Georgia by a disposal of the patronage would be an ignominious failure. Georgia is going to stick to the confederacy.

It now seems to be settled that the O. R. & N. lines are to be leased to the Northern Pacific and Union Pacific. This will be fraught with important consequences to the northwest. Oregon and Portland will not suffer by it.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

OREGON.

Immense numbers of squirrels are destroying crops in portions of Union county this season.

A 12 year old boy named Hamilton was drowned in the middle fork of the Willamette above Pleasant Hill, near Hyland's ferry, last Sunday.

A large area of corn was planted this season and since the late rains looks very well. Jackson county cannot be equaled in Oregon in producing corn.

Contract has been let by Jackson county to the San Francisco Bridge company for the construction of a bridge across Rogue river near Bybee's ferry. The price is $13,187.

A 9 year old son of Mr. Ficke, living on Sucker creek, Josephine county, had the finger and thumb of one of his hands blown off by the accidental discharge of a gun a few days since.

The body of a man was found in Klamath river last week at the mouth of Centennial ditch, supposed to be the tramp printer who was drowned in trying to swim the river a couple of weeks ago at the stage road ferry.

Ashland Tidings: Some little excitement is reported over new placer diggings now being worked on Cottonwood creek, above Shattuck's place on the other side of the Siskiyous. It is said some fifty men have been at work there, some making good wages.

A Presbyterian church will most likely be built at Linkville this season. A gentleman in one of the eastern states generously offered some time since to give $500 or more for that purpose, provided enough would be contributed by citizens of the town and vicinity to construct a good building. Rev. Robert McLean has succeeded in securing pledges to the amount of nearly $800, and it is understood the building will be commenced before long.

WASHINGTON.

Seattle has three republican daily newspapers.

The first brick building is being constructed at North Yakima.

Contract for the construction of the new boys' school at Tacoma has been let for $22,000.

A well has been sunk at Okanagan nearly 300 feet deep, without obtaining water. The village is on a high grassy plateau about 1000 feet above the Columbia and distant from that stream thirteen miles by wagon road.

The dwelling house of Mr. Jacob Waldrick, who lives on the Deschutes river, about twelve miles south of Olympia, was burned on Monday, the 8th inst. The fire caught in the roof from sparks from the chimney, and had gained such headway before being discovered that it could not be stopped. The contents of the house were saved.

The Cheney Tribune says: "The machinery for the grain elevator is on the way and the lumber ordered. There will be but one elevator in this country this year. At the Falls and at Sprague there will be only warehouses. Cheney will be the first town in this entire western country to possess this advantage, there being at present none west of Montana."

John Brannan, who has been employed as a workman to help discharge the bark Germania, unloaded at the Ocean dock, Seattle, on Saturday, complained of dizziness and said he was going under the wharf to bathe his head. Since then nothing has been seen or heard of him. It was low tide at the time, and it is feared he fell into the water and at the rising of the tide was drowned.

Tacoma Ledger: A large gang of Mr. Nelson Bennett's laborers are engaged in clearing a landslide from the summit cut on the Cascade division. This cut is situated between South prairie and White river. It is 1,000 feet long. About three weeks ago a slide 700 feet long occurred in this cut. The work of clearing it has been slow on account of the almost constant rain up in that section, which has occasioned additional slides. The last was on Thursday, when two of the company's cars were crushed to smithereens by the force of the slide.

IDAHO.

The remains of the late Judge H. E. Prickett have been buried at Boise City.

John Marsh committed suicide at Murray several days ago by taking morphine.

Contract for the foundation of the new capitol building at Boise City has been let for $6520.

Last Sunday afternoon Otis Withington, a locomotive fireman, attempted to jump on a moving switch engine in Heron yard, when he missed his footing and fell under the engine, losing both feet. He was taken to Missoula on the passenger train, which was due at Heron, soon after the accident happened. The company's surgeon from the Missoula hospital was sent out by a special engine to meet the injured man, but aside from dressing the mangled limbs, nothing could be done, and the young man died the following day. He was a native of New Hampshire, where his people live, and about 25 years of age.

A letter from Murray says: The California ditch is completed and the water will be into Dream gulch and on the hills sometime this week. It has been a long and expensive job to the owners; it is twelve miles long, and cost $25,000 to construct it. Some very heavy jobs of fluming were necessary. The trestle-work for the flume across Butte creek is eighty-five feet high. The Potosi and Beaver creek ditch is under good headway and is expected to be finished by the middle of July. They have a fine open way on the line of the ditch, and have but little timber to bother them. The ditch from Eagle creek to the head of Dream gulch and McComber and Accident gulches is also being pushed forward to completion. The way is already cleared and graded, and the saw mill is on the ground ready for work. It is to be flumed the whole distance, seven miles, and is said to be the best of all the ditch projects in the camp.

Worlds of Good.

Probably no other woman in the World receives so many "letters of thanks" as Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass. Mrs. B—— of Enfield, N. H., says: "I will simply say that your Vegetable Compound is all you recommend it to be. It has done me worlds of good." Another lady writes from Ottawa as follows: "I have just to-day bought the seventh bottle of your Vegetable Compound, have used two boxes of Pills and several packages of your Sanative Wash, and think it but right to tell you how much good I derived from your medicines. They are a regular God-send. All the pains and aches have almost disappeared, my stomach is much stronger too, and I feel myself improved every way."

The Reno Gazette came out the other day with this strong hint: "If the property-holders expect the boys to turn out at the next fire they had better show them some cigars, as they feel very sore over not getting a 'thank you' from anybody." The editor has since explained that he wrote "signs" where the compositor set "cigars."—Sacramento Bee.

Hygienic and nourishing: Ghirardelli's Cocoa. Cheaper and better than the imported.

Agreeable to Take.

No medicine is so agreeable to take as Henley's Celery Beef and Iron; thousands drink it daily to keep themselves well and strong.

OREGON AND OMAHA.

What is Thought Will be the Result of the V
the Business Men of the Last Named Plac

Mr. D. C. Adams, who represents a dozen leading manufacturers of the east, and who ac panied the business men of Omaha on the r excursion over the Union Pacific and Oregon Line to Portland and the northwest, was i viewed the other day in Salt Lake City by porter of the Herald. The following are ex which refer to this state and its interests:

"Yes," said Mr. Adams, "I am convinced the Omaha merchants' visit to Oregon will the effect of opening up a big trade between O and the northwest. The visit was made fo purpose of acquaintanceship, of course, but all indications a large commercial interchang ensue. The new rate, which went into effect for the several roads, will also be a good thin Portland, especially as she can now reach all section of country with her products on a con footing with Omaha and San Francisco, the tariff taking Utah and parts of Idaho and Mon as a center, and giving an equal rate to all t cities."

The reporter said that he had not been a that Oregon would figure as a shipper. He tho she would appear as a purchaser in the eas markets.

"Oregon has immense resources," said
Adams, "and will send a good many produc
Omaha in exchange for the white lead, ba wire, nails, etc., etc., which Omaha sends to Oregon canned fruits of every description, ex peaches, are unparalleled. The big salmon eries are tributary to her, and she has imm grain producing and growing districts. She many things that Omaha wants, and the vis the merchants will result, as it was intende starting this interchange to moving, and of co proving the big thing that was also intende
the Union Pacific road."

"You think the Oregon Short Line will be a ing investment, then?"

"It is sure to be, and at no distant date. It r through a country already swarming with hor cattle and sheep, and one which is rapidly grow and settling up. The northwest trade is on which I think Utah will also have a substantia terest, already we have sent two carloads of plaster into Oregon, and a market will be found a vast deal more of it through the north and no west."

OREGON AND OMAHA.

What Thought Will be the Result of the Visit of Business Men of the Last Named Place.

E. C. Adams, who represents a dozen of the manufactories of the east, and who accompanied the business men of Omaha on the recent excursion over the Union Pacific and Oregon Short Line to Portland and the northwest, was met the other day in Salt Lake City by a reporter of the Herald. The following are extracts relating to this state and its interests:

"Yes," said Mr. Adams, "I am convinced the Omaha merchants' visit to Oregon will be beneficial, opening up a big trade between Omaha and the northwest. The visit was made for [illegible] of acquaintanceship of course, but [illegible] foundations a large commercial interchange will [illegible]. The new rate which went into effect [illegible] in general roads, will also be a good thing for [illegible] especially as she can now reach all the [illegible] of country with her products on a common [illegible] with Omaha and San Francisco, the new [illegible] taking Utah and parts of Idaho and Montana [illegible] giving an equal rate to all three."

The reporter said that he had not been aware that Oregon would figure as a shipper. He thought she would appear as a purchaser in the eastern states.

"Oregon has immense resources," said Mr. Adams, "and will send a good many products to Omaha in exchange for the white lead, turned [illegible] goods, etc., which Omaha sends to her. The canned fruits of every description except peaches, are unparalleled. The big salmon fish is tributary to her and she has immense [illegible] producing and growing districts. She has everything that Omaha wants, and the visit of the merchants will result as it was intended in getting this interchange to moving, and of course the big thing that was also intended for the Union Pacific road.

"I think the Oregon Short Line will be a [illegible] investment then?"

"It is sure to be, and at no distant date. It runs through a country already swarming with horses, cattle and sheep, and one which is rapidly growing and filling up. The northwest trade is [illegible] to Utah, and Utah will also have a substantial interest. Already we have sent two carloads of salt to Oregon and a market will be found for a great deal more of it through the north and northwest."

LOCAL AND GENERAL.

TURNED OUT INCORRIGIBLE.—The boy, Willie Vanderhere, who came to the police several weeks ago and asked protection from a man named Welch, with whom he had been living, and who he claimed had beaten him, has turned out very bad and utterly incorrigible. The police officers took very good care of the little fellow, and Messrs. Hair, Collins, Wing, Barry, Simmons, Smith, Watson and Henline made up a nice little purse and bought him a complete new outfit of clothing, of which he stood sadly in need. He stayed two days with an East Portland family, behaving himself first rate, and was then taken home by Police Judge Moreland. There he remained two or three days longer, proving very satisfactorily that he knew how to work, and was strong and willing. In fact he made so good an impression upon the judge and his wife that the former interested himself in procuring for him a home. United States Surveyor General Tolman, who has raised a family of his own, was willing to take a boy of this kind to do chores and run errands for his wife and daughters at their home in southern Oregon. So he took the boy and sent him down there, expecting to hear only the best accounts of his excellent behavior. Instead of that, before the boy had been there a week, Mr. Tolman received a telegram from his wife begging him to take his protege away quickly, as he had threatened to burn down the house, and they were afraid of him. So the boy was brought back and is now in the children's home, where he will be made to behave as long as he stays there.

A. O. U. W. EXCURSION.—The A. O. U. W. excursion Saturday night to Vancouver, was a success. The Vancouver A. O. U. W. committee, Rev. Mr. Nicholson, Hon. J. P. Geoghegan, Master Workman Dixon and Captain Robert Williams, together with hundreds of citizens, welcomed on the wharf the party on its arrival. As soon as the excursionists were on shore they took up the line of march with A. J. Marshall at their head, and were escorted by the committee to Marsh hall, which was beautifully decorated, having been left so from the firemen's party of Friday night. The hall was soon crowded, and Brother Geoghegan, who is always ready with appropriate remarks on all occasions, mounted the platform and announced in a happy manner that the hour being late no speeches would be inflicted upon them, and for the ladies and children to at once repair to the loaded tables, and when satisfied the gentlemen would take the crumbs. This idea seemed to hit, and all did justice to the lunch which Capt. Williams had labored hard to prepare. Calls were made for Stephens, who refused then to impose a speech upon them. A good time generally was had. Thanks and congratulations being exchanged, all departed about 1 o'clock A. M., the beautiful moonlight and cool breeze making the ride home a delightful affair.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON.—The board of regents of the university of Oregon transacted some business which has not yet been reported, but is now learned through the Hon. Matthew P. Deady, the president. Benjamin Beekman, one of the tutors, has been granted an absence of two years, during which time he proposes to travel and study in Europe. There has been no other change, although it was at first proposed to appoint a successor to Mr. Beekman, but the faculty finally concluded the university had a sufficient number of teachers now employed to do all the work. A resolution was adopted annulling the so-called charters heretofore granted the literary societies, and further declaring that the faculty had authority, and it was their duty to make all needful rules and regulations for the government and conduct of such societies. This is to remedy a heretofore existing evil by which these literary societies, having obtained the so-called charters, arrogated to themselves special privileges which their members, under the rules of the university, could not possess. As the jurists say, it was imperium in imperio, and the faculty has proceeded to break it up. The board has also authorized a contract for a water supply, at a cost not to exceed $600 per annum.

AN INDIAN BUNKOED.—A day or two since an Indian named John Pratt arrived here from Grand Ronde reservation, riding a rather fine horse of which he was very proud. While riding out at the north end on Saturday Pratt was met by two men, who commenced a conversation in regard to his horse, which ended in a challenge to run a race with a horse one of these men said he had. If there is any one thing which the average siwash is more eager to engage in than any other thing, it is a horse race. The challenge was promptly accepted, and the race was set for yesterday. At the suggestion of the racing white man Pratt put up $2 50 in the hands of the other paleface as a forfeit in case he should not be on hand to race. Then the two whites strolled off and have not been seen since. The Indian was on hand, but after waiting a long time he concluded that he had been victimized. He hunted up Deputy U. S. Marshal Chas. Frush and stated the case to him. Charley informed him that he had been bunkoed, in other words, the perfidious pale faces had capewalled his coin. He then wished to know how he was to recover his money, persimmon, but was told that the chances were very slim for ever seeing his $2 50 again.

ARRIVED SAFE IN PORT.—The bark Coloma, Captain Cyrus Noyes, from Hong Kong with a full cargo of Chinese merchandise, arrived here Saturday evening in tow of the E. N. Cooke. Captain Noyes' wife and daughter, who have accompanied him on every previous trip for the past ten years, but who remained behind when he sailed on this voyage, had become somewhat anxious about him, as he was due here about ten days ago, having been detained by adverse winds. They were on the dock to welcome him home to the snug harbor they have been keeping in order for him. The bark Alden Besse, the Coloma's twin, sailed from Hong Kong for Victoria a few days after the Coloma. When two days out, Captain O'Brien found that there was a lot of Chinese stowaways on board, and as he would have been heavily fined had he brought them across, he was obliged to put back to Hong Kong. It is a wonder he had not thrown them overboard, and it is safe to bet that they went ashore when he got back to Hong Kong as if shot out of a gun. They will not stow away on board the Alden Besse again.

WILL ADVERTISE OREGON.—Mr. Albert W. Swalm, president of the Iowa press association, as a slight recompense for the attentions shown the association has volunteered to make two exhibits of Oregon's grains, fruits and vegetables, one at the Oskaloosa county fair, the other at the Iowa state fair. He has an office at the latter's ground, and will devote two walls, each 12x16 feet, for displaying the exhibit, and, furthermore, will employ a man to look after it and to distribute such printed information about the state as may be furnished to him. The county fair is held the first week in August, and is second only to the state fair, the attendance being from 7000 to 20,000 a day. The state fair will be held the following week, and the attendance usually is about 200,000. Of course Mr. Swalm's service is offered gratis, and it will no doubt be gratefully accepted.

HOMELESS AND FRIENDLESS.—An old man named Murphy fell at the corner of Washington and Front streets last evening in a dizzy or fainting fit. He struck his head on the sidewalk and hurt himself badly. He was picked up and placed in a sitting position on the sidewalk, where he remained for some time in a sort of dazed condition. At last some one said, "Poor old man, when he looked up and said, "There are lots of men a heap older than I am, you bet. I was 70 years old last March. I knew I was going to fall when I fell. I always do when I have these spells." He did not care to be assisted to his feet, but remained sitting on the sidewalk till the crowd dispersed. Murphy has been in the county poor house, but did not wish to remain there. He had better be sent back there, as he appears to have no home nor any one to care for him.

STATE CONVENTION W. C. T. U.—The third annual convention of the State Woman's Christian Temperance Union will be held in East Portland commencing on Wednesday, June 24, and closing on Friday evening following. Devotional services will be held each morning at [illegible] o'clock, under the supervision of Mrs. R. S. Stubbs, late superintendent of evangelical work. The regular business session will open at 10 o'clock A. M. and at 2 o'clock P. M. of each day. An interesting programme will be presented each evening at the Presbyterian church. Day sessions will be held in the W. C. T. U. hall, corner I and Fifth streets. The public are cordially invited to all these meetings.

BALLOON ASCENSION.—A new and interesting feature has been added to the programme of amusements for the Fourth in the shape of a balloon ascension. A monster balloon has been made here at a cost of $1800, a large force having been engaged upon it for two weeks past. It has not been learned who is to go up in the balloon, boys, up in a balloon, sailing round the little stars," etc. This ascension will be a "way up" affair, and will prove a great attraction.

CAMPMEETING.—The state campmeeting of the Christian church will be held at Turner Station, commencing Thursday, June 25th, and continuing over two Sundays. The state missionary board of this religious body is about to engage an experienced and successful preacher from the east as state evangelist.

YESTERDAY'S RACES.—There was a running and a trotting race at City View park yesterday. For the running race, half a mile and repeat, the entries were Record, Winters and Hastings. The first heat was won by Record, Winters [illegible] second, while Hastings, [illegible] ran against the fence, came in [illegible]. Time, [illegible]. The second heat was [illegible] of the first, Record winning in [illegible]. In the trotting race Kitty Lynch and Nightshade were entered. Kitty Lynch won the first two heats in 2:[illegible] and 2:40. Coming under the wire the first time almost at a walk in order to prevent distancing Nightshade.

WILL RACE ANY TEAM IN OREGON.—Sam. Jordan has received the following from Astoria, signed by Jos. G. Charters, chief of the fire department of that city, and Frank [illegible], foreman of Rescue No. Two's hose team: "Rescue No. Two's team will be in Portland on July 4, to compete for prizes should there be any offered. Should there be no prizes offered they will challenge the Capitals of Salem or any other team in Oregon to run the wet race in Portland July 4, 1885, for money from $500 to $2000."

CITY VIEW PARK.—The beautiful weather yesterday brought out a large crowd to witness the sports at City View Park. There was plenty to amuse those who attended in the shape of horse racing, base ball playing, blackbird shooting and dancing. The company is not such as is found in attendance on our churches, but they were orderly and well behaved and enjoyed themselves.

LOST HIS VOICE.—"I wish you would put in a little advertisement for me under the head of 'Lost,'" said one of the Iowa excursionists as he came into the business office of THE OREGONIAN yesterday. "All right, what is it?" asked the obliging clerk. "I have lost my voice," was the reply, "shouting in praise of this great country."

THE IOWANS.—A full report of the trip of the Iowa journalists in the southern part of the state and their return, together with an account of the banquet tendered them on Saturday night by the board of trade of this city, will be found in THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN.

THE STARS EASILY WIN

The Dotlets with the Portlands' Battery, Beaten Eighteen to Four.

The attendance at the City View Park yesterday was pretty large, and the crowd plainly hoped that the Dotlets, aided by Glendenning and Timmons of the Portlands as pitcher and catcher, might win, but they were easily beaten, the stars batting Glendenning, while the Dotlets failed to hit Dunbury and Drummond to any purpose. The former pitched steadily and strategically, with two base hits off him, and the latter three in [illegible] with a like number of hits. The fielding was rather loose on both sides, though the Stars had much the best of it. They played three new men, Young, third, who is a good stop, and [illegible] at first, and behind the bat, who did some good catching, considering that he never caught a ball from Drummond until this game, and Nelson, who captured a fly in the field and then did some good work at first. Neither Timmons nor Campbell played well. The former was continually struck by foul tips and the latter favored a bruised hand. Fine plays were made by Buteroll, Cavalline, Drummond, Campbell and Dispey. The Dotlets' first run was scored by Glendenning on Campbell's failure to hold his third strike and two subsequent errors on the third. The three runs in the ninth were scored by an error, a hit, a wrong decision by the umpire and two more errors. Of the Stars' runs [illegible] four were earned. Following is

COMPLIMENTARY BENEFIT TO MR. KINROSS.

Agreeable to a proffer from a large number of friends Mr. Kinross will be the recipient of a complimentary benefit performance at the Casino on the evening of Monday next, the 29th. The form of the tender of this mark of appreciation is appended at length and the names of the suggesters thereto. It goes without saying that Mr. Kinross stands the best possible chance of drawing to the Casino next Monday an audience which for numbers has not been seen there yet. The feelings which will prompt the majority to respond to the announcement will be the conviction that he or she has personally at one or many times been directly or indirectly gratified by Kinross as a musical artist, and that in a city poor until of late in such attractions and so often dependent upon his energy for musical life and musical development. This is no compliment. It will appear as a fact to every one who may read it, and it is honestly hoped may be an incentive to the determination to give him a bumper benefit. Where the personal equation comes in Kinross is sure of a host of supporters, because he is known as a jolly good fellow, perfectly willing to spend his last dollar and more too, on his bitterest enemy, and taking the consequences, and anyway we have all had many a good time out of Kinross' music and cordially hope he may feel he is appreciated in this respect. The opera will be the "Bohemian Girl." Mr. Kinross will sing Count Arnheim. It is believed the Orchestral union will recognize its long connection with this society by an offer to perform the entr'actes. Other arrangements are suggested as well to make the evening specially attractive, and the performance is already talked of as a brilliant affair.

TO ASTORIA AND BACK.

How the Iowa Press Association Spent Yesterday on the Lower River.

ON BOARD THE STEAMER WIDE WEST, }
June 21, 1885. }

About two-thirds of the Iowa press association boarded the steamer Wide West at Ash-street wharf at this morning bound for Astoria. They had [illegible] very wearying though most pleasant week of travel, and most of them would have preferred a day's rest, yet they could not forego the promised pleasure of a sail to the sea. It may well be mentioned that a trip from Portland to Seattle and return, then to Ashland, back to Albany, across to Corvallis, back to Portland, then with only enough time for attendance at a banquet last night [illegible] hours and ending at 1 A. M. [illegible] the visitors a tired [illegible] getting up [illegible] o'clock this morning [illegible] little fortitude [illegible] had kindly been placed at the disposal of the board of trade committee by the Oregon Railway and Navigation company, and the ladies were soon assigned to rooms, where they rested until arose refreshed for the trip. [illegible] at Kalama [illegible]. Here a stop of 20 minutes was [illegible] to allow the party to inspect the process of canning salmon. Mr. J. G. Megler, who had been apprised of their coming, had all the working force of his establishment out and a lot of fish in readiness. As soon as the visitors took station where all of them could see the work, it started. The wheels rolling, and in less than ten minutes the Iowans saw the salmon as they were taken from the water, cleaned, dissected, placed in cans, steamed, the cans sealed, tagged and labeled—the entire process under their eyes in as little time as it takes to tell it. And to complete the visit each one of the excursionists was presented with a can of the salmon which they had seen prepared for preservation and future use. The visitors were not prepared for so complete an exhibition and their wonder knew no bounds. Their astonishment was completed by the sight of [illegible] fifty hundred salmon weighing from fifty to sixty pounds each. One gentleman remarked: "This is our greatest day."

It would not be possible to bring more [illegible] than the [illegible] that the temperature just warm enough to allow wraps to be dispensed with, bright sunshine, cloudless except for the [illegible] which rested lightly on the mountain tops, and the invigorating sea breeze, grateful alike to new comers and pioneers. The weather was simply perfect, and how the visitors did enjoy it! A few few hours' rest and the inspection of the cannery had roused their spirits, which the salt air further heightened. It also sharpened their appetites.

A total was reached at 1:30 P. M. A crowd of about 1000 people had assembled at the wharf. A committee consisting of Judge Bowlby, M. C. Crosby, E. C. Holden, J. H. D. Gray, W. E. Dement, A. W. Berry and E. F. Halloran, received the visitors, who were escorted without delay to the Occident and other hotels and restaurants, the Occident, of course, accommodating all the dining room would seat. Messrs. Miller and Wright had provided what they call lunch on, but it was a great meal, and the hungry excursionists did full justice to it. The people of Astoria had made every arrangement to take the party over to Cape Hancock, and Capt. Gray had the steamer General Miles, and Capt. [illegible] the tugs Astoria and the Pioneer in waiting, but unfortunately the time was too short. If the trip had been made, it would have kept the visitors up until 2 o'clock to-morrow morning. So it was abandoned. However about one-third of the party boarded the Miles and steamed down to Fort Canby point, where they got a good view of the ocean, while the remainder walked up the hill past the cemetery and from that eminence saw the Pacific. All regretted that their stay was necessarily cut so short, but they were none the less grateful for the proffered hospitality.

On the way back the Wide West passed quite a number of fishing boats, and the visitors saw a dozen or more nets hauled in with finny captives. Dinner was served on the boat from 5 to 7, and it was a good dinner. The trip was unlike most any other steamboat ride because the craft and all its comforts and conveniences were as much at the command of the visitors as if the property was theirs. The Wide West arrived at Ash street dock at 11 P. M. A moonlight ride from St. Helens to Portland was a fitting close for the last night of the Iowa press excursion west of the cascade mountains.

THE FACTS IN THE INGRAM MATTER

Some days ago a statement was published which we are satisfied, upon later information, did injustice to C. J. Macdougall of this city. The information on which the statement was based was derived mainly from a man named Lloyd of San Francisco. The circumstances which led to the publishment of the statement arose from a controversy about the custody of some infant orphan children of the name of Ingram, whose uncle Lloyd is. The father of these children died by suicide at Sellwood about a year ago, and their mother died some two months since. It was asserted by Lloyd that Macdougall had entered into some kind of an arrangement with Ingram to secure a bequest left to Ingram by his mother, and the insinuation was that Macdougall had acted unfairly in the matter and had derived more profit from the transaction than he ought. We have made further inquiry about the matter and are convinced that Lloyd's statements do Mr. Macdougall injustice. It appears that in the fall of 1883, when Mr. Macdougall was about to proceed to Scotland on business, Herbert S. Ingram called on him and wished to arrange with him to sell a reversionary interest, expectant upon the death of his mother, amounting to £1000. He stated in the course of the conversation with Mr. Macdougall that he had recently come here from California, and that he was compelled to leave there on account of having nearly killed his brother-in-law, one Lloyd, for having beaten his wife, Ingram's sister. Macdougall undertook the business and was furnished with a power of attorney authorizing him to sell or mortgage the reversionary interest at any price he thought proper. After being in Edinburg about a month, he received a cable gram from Ingram urging him to hasten matters. He then applied to a reversionary company and ascertained that the interest of Ingram was valued at $10,500 and was [illegible] to dispose of it for that sum when he remembered that Mr. Fish, the husband of Ingram's mother, was a wealthy man and might be induced to advance £3000 on Ingram's reversionary interest and thus save it from being lost entirely to Ingram's children. After much trouble he succeeded in bringing this arrangement and transferred to Mr. Fish Ingram's interest upon the understanding that on the repayment of the £3000 at any time he would surrender up his right to Ingram's children. At his suggestion also Ingram's life was insured for £2000 in favor of Mr. Fish. A portion of the money received from Mr. Fish was handed to Ingram, and on Mr. Macdougall's return [illegible] the balance was paid over to him and his wife after both had executed a receipt. By his request and Mrs. Ingram had stated that she was opposed to her husband buying land, as he had told Mr. Macdougall was his intention when he employed the latter to sell his reversionary interest. Mr. Macdougall's cut was his fees, 10 per cent of the money, which was the sum agreed upon before he went to Scotland, and which sum it appears was the only amount paid him for his services by Ingram or anybody else. Ingram went up to Coeur d'Alene and run through with his money in the saloon business and an unfortunate speculation in putting up [illegible]. Last summer Mr. Macdougall returned to England, and having heard of the death of Ingram, communicated it to his family, and afterward on learning of the illness and destitute condition of Mrs. Ingram, applied to Mr. Fish to assist her, and at his request cabled her £40, and paid for the dispatch out of his own pocket. Mr. Fish afterward wrote to Mr. Macdougall, when he was in London, asking him to advise him in case of Mrs. Ingram's death, so that arrangements could be made to take the children to England, and he agreed to do so. Since that time Mr. Macdougall has had no connection with the Ingrams or their estate. We are confident that the statement furnished by Lloyd was full of misinformation, and that it does Mr. Macdougall and others injustice which we regret.

THE MOREY PROPOSITION.

PORTLAND, June [illegible], 1885.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

Would it not be well for the members of the common council before they pass the Morey job to examine the amendment made by the last legislature limiting the rate of taxation in this city. This amendment provides for a rate of taxation not higher than one per cent. There is now levied a rate of nine mills for ordinary expenses. Where will the $40,000 be raised to pay Morey, and by what process? This will be asked of the members of the council and of "Judge" Adams, the boss of the job. The present charter of the city provides for an indebtedness of $100,000. How, and by what process of reasoning, can the council pass the Morey job and incur an indebtedness of $805,000 [illegible]. My opinion of the matter is that the ordinance if passed would have no force, and could not be enforced by any legislative authority. After [illegible]. As is shown by our correspondent [illegible] in this morning's OREGONIAN, the water rates will be higher under the Morey job than now paid to the present monopoly. It is, however, unnecessary to [illegible] this to Judge Adams. TAXPAYER.

WHAT IS THE LACK?

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN.

May I be allowed to say a word through your extensive read paper to the farmers of your great state. Through the courtesy of the railroad companies I have been permitted to ride through its entire length, from north to south. I have looked over your beautiful valleys from a practical farmer's standpoint. Over fifty years of my life have been spent on the farm. Born and raised on a farm among the rocks and hills of New Hampshire, and then for the last thirty years on one in Iowa, I claim that unless I have been a very dull student I should know something of farming.

Unless I am greatly mistaken the farmers of your state are having something of the same experience that was so bitter to thousands of our Iowa farmers in not very recent years. The great and fascinating idea with many was wheat raising. Coming mostly from the New England states, where the grain crops were always small, the ease with which extended acres could be cropped with grain carried most of the pioneer farmers off their feet, and they continued in the grain raising business until many lost their farms. Some eight or ten years ago we began to agitate the stock and dairy idea among our wheat growing farmers, and those who had enough left from the wheat failures to get a few good cows and go into dairy farming are now out of debt and are getting ahead in the world.

The cow and tame grass have saved thousands of Iowa farmers from utter bankruptcy. It has struck me while riding over your fine valleys so admirably adapted to clover and the grasses, that if the Iowa farmer, 2000 miles nearer market, can not raise wheat only at a loss that the Oregon farmer in this grand climate so wonderfully favorable to the manufacture of cheese and butter, might possibly be making a mistake in continuing to hold on to the old time habit of grain raising. We have to-day in Iowa over 500 creameries where butter is made from the cream gathered by teams from the farmers for a radius of fifteen miles and upwards around them. Aside from these there are large numbers of cheese factories that make cheese and butter. Then again the number of private farm dairies is beyond swelling the dairy product of our state to an amazing amount.

The product is always cash, and as a rule very remunerative and sure. Another thing in favor of dairy farming is the fact that the dairy farm always increases in fertility while grain raising is always depleting. Your mountain streams and springs, your cool moist climate, and your luxuriant growth of clovers all tend to make these valleys of Oregon the very paradise of the dairyman. Your distance from the great markets of the world gives a tremendous emphasis to the idea of putting as much value in a pound of product as possible. It costs but very little more to send a pound of cheese or butter to Liverpool than it does a pound of wheat. The farmer must always remember that he must pay the freight from the farm to the market, be that market where it may. With the dairy will come the improved hog and the steer, and with these comes more and richer grass, and this means more stock and more stock means a dependence, and with this comes schooling, refinement and good society.

I do not say you do not now have refinement and good society in Oregon, but I am writing for my fellow farmers. I have passed through all the privations of pioneer life, taking a preemption in Iowa thirty years ago in a small beginning. For seventeen years I lived in my little fourteen foot preemption log cabin, and it was the cow and the milk pail that lifted me out of it. If I read rightly what I have seen in your state, there are thousands of farmers who can see no way how to pay the debts hanging over them and send their children to school with grain at present prices. I sympathize with these hard working men and I frankly say I can see but little hope for them unless they follow the steps of their Iowa brothers and turn from grain to dairy and stock. This is safe and sure. It may be slow at first, but in the end there will be no disappointment.

The natural growth of your towns and the increase of manufacturing industries which would seem from your abundant water power and inexhaustible stores of fuel inevitable, will give a ready market near at home for the dairy products of your farms. Pardon me if I have been too forward in the expression of my views, but so intensely am I enlisted on the side of the best good of the farm and the farmers' families I could not well resist the desire to give the farmers of these grand valleys the benefit of the experience we of Iowa have gone through.

As a member of the press excursionists I tender you my sincere thanks for the cordial good will and welcome you have shown us. Our visit among your people will be the event of our lives to many of us. J. S. COFFIN.

Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Cleveland's Inconsistency and Ingratitude.

Vicksburg (Miss) Post (Dem)

The assassination of Print Matthews in November 1883, undoubtedly had a decided effect upon the election in 1884 In our opinion very few people in Copiah dared to vote against Cleveland for president in 1884, and to that extent at least was the electoral vote of this state affected When in our judgment the proper time arrives for discussing more fully this question we shall be ready to maintain our opinions and views Mr Meade and his compatriots or confederates contributed greatly to Cleveland's success in Copiah county, and if the electoral vote of the state had hinged upon the vote of one county no doubt Mr Cleveland's partisans in Copiah would have been found equal to the emergency Now it seems to us very inconsistent for Mr Cleveland to demand Mr Meade's resignation and we agree with the Jackson Clarion the orthodox democratic organ of the state that it amounts to an indictment of a whole people with very people whose votes were necessary to Mr Cleveland's success

The Saintly Mugwump

New York Letter to Cincinnati Enquirer (Dem)

The bottom is falling out of the mugwump organization here People are seeing that Henry Ward Beecher had personal and ulterior purposes when he assailed Mr Blaine's character, which was like the pot calling the kettle black Herbert Beecher is appointed collector on the Pacific ocean An attempt has recently been made also to put George William Curtis's brother in law General Barlow a crank and professional saint into the place of collector of the port of New York Such is the condition of mugwumpery a thinly concealed passion either for office or for assaults upon the office holding spirit

The Death of Black George

The death of Prince Karageorgevitch marks a stage in the current of a terrible romance His father was a brigand and outlaw, renowned for giant strength and desperate ferocity, beyond compare even in Servia When the famous quarrel occurred between Christian and Moslem women at the public fountain in Belgrade, Black George and his band of cutthroats headed the insurrection. The result we all know He was named Prince of Servia, and triumphantly carried on in that rank the exploits which had earned his reputation His rival, Milan Obrenovitch, the pig dealer, formed a conspiracy, and surprised him at a village hahn or pothouse Such was the dread men felt of Black George's prowess that though the murderers numbered over twenty they dared not assail him, even sleeping Obrenovitch and his bravest comrade stole in and standing one on either side the couch, slashed those terrible arms with a simultaneous cut, as they lay relaxed in slumber but more than one assassin was crushed to death before the gallant ruffian succumbed Obrenovitch succeeded him, but he proved more blood thirsty, in a cold and cruel way, than his predecessor The people rose at length and recalled the dynasty of Black George Prince Alexander, who has just died, came to the throne, but if he bore a striking similarity to his father in some respects, he did not show much shrewdness A plot among his officers rid the country of him without bloodshed to speak of as things go in Servia. The son of Milan succeeded but he was murdered while walking with some ladies in the neighborhood of his palace How many times the life of Milan, the present king has been attempted, he himself probably does not know The late prince married money, and his son is husband to the daughter of Prince Nicholas of Montenegro It is safe to predict that the adventurous story of the karageorgevitch is not yet finished —London Standard
